Business Overview of KIRARITO GINZA

■ Project Concept

Guided by a “Brilliant Life Stage” project concept, KIRARITO GINZA was named in the hopes that it would become “The Happiest Place in the Ginza” for providing brilliant products, services and spatial settings. The building was also named after its façade, which was designed with a brilliant cut diamonds motif to shine brilliantly and change its appearance by reflecting the sunlight at different times of the day.

■ Building Logo

With the aim of creating a symbol that portrays the identity of the building, the ridgeline along the iconic crown at the top of the building was incorporated in the logo design. In addition, the name of the building, which has been broken down into “KIRA,” “RITO,” and “GINZA” are arranged in a three row pattern to represent the crystal design of the façade. As a commercial facility that provides new value, the logo has been created to make a lasting impression and is designed with consideration to the color so that the logo blends in naturally with the streets of Ginza.

■ Building Characteristics

The building is planned to have 12 floors above ground and will be 66 meters in height, with a large open terrace of approximately 100 m² on the fourth floor, which is an unprecedented feature for a building along Chuo Avenue. It also features a rooftop garden, atriums and other liberating spatial settings, along with potted plants in throughout the interior, in order to provide public squares and greenery the area previously lacked, to form a new restful and refreshing landmark in the Ginza.
