

ORIX Life to Offer Moonshot Single-Premium Whole Life Insurance That Can Be Denominated in Dollars or Yen

~Allowing the use of a large lump sum of funds to prepare for the unexpected as well as for asset building~

TOKYO, Japan – October 1, 2024 – ORIX Life Insurance Corporation (“ORIX Life”) announced that it will commence offering Moonshot—a single-premium whole life insurance that can be denominated either in U.S. dollars or Japanese yen—on November 18, 2024.

Moonshot is a whole life insurance that uses the single premium based on the designated accumulation interest rate to provide the accumulated value as death insurance or as asset building. Focusing its functions on death insurance and fund accumulation, it can aim for high yield levels while having a product design that is simple and easy to understand. In addition, it can be denominated in one of two currencies—U.S. dollar or Japanese yen—to widely meet the needs and thinking of customers regarding asset building.

As society enters the era of 100-year life expectancy, asset building with the future in mind will require even more effort from the individual than before. The purpose of asset building is also diversifying beyond legacy to family, including funds for one’s own use after retirement. In such times, Moonshot was developed to meet the needs of customers who desire to use a large lump sum of funds to prepare for the unexpected and for inheritance, and at the same time, for their own asset building.

ORIX Life will continue to provide offerings that meet the needs of the times, and will strive to continue to be an insurance company chosen by many customers.
